INTRODUCTION

The National Commission for Government Reforms (NCGR) has been established to review the size and structure of the government with the objective of providing a modern, efficient and accountable system of governance.

2. The Federal Government has at present 411 Organizational Entities (OEs) attached departments, autonomous bodies, registered companies, statutory corporations under the control of its various Divisions/ Ministries. NCGR has undertaken an exercise to determine the legal instruments under which various departments/ organization of different Ministries/ Divisions were set up.

3. In April 2007 all 48 Divisions of the Federal Government were requested to provide the requisite information. The information was received and compiled by August, 2007.

4. This publication is an attempt, in consultation with the relevant Administrative Ministries/ Divisions, to provide a comprehensive listing and classification of all the organizational entities under the control of the Federal Government by the nature of their functions and legal status. Out of 411 OEs the majority i.e. 26% belong to the categories of commercial/ semi-commercial/ manufacturing; public utilities and service providers and financial institutions. 14% are attached departments or executing agencies, 9% are training institutions. The remaining 50% entities are scattered over 12 functional categories.

5. The main consideration behind the proposed categorization is to bring clarity regarding role and functions of these OEs so that these can help the executive branch of the Government in discharge of its responsibilities. The final outcome is presented in the form of this booklet which may serve as ready reference for the Ministries, Divisions, Provincial Governments, research institutions, media and the donor community.

6. Although great care has been exercised to ensure veracity of the information provided, the possibility of errors/ omissions remains. The Commission would welcome any errors/ omissions/ shortcomings being pointed out which would lead to further improve this document.
